Whitmer wrote to Haaland, the Grand River Bands “may wish to open their own gaming facility” not far from the Little River Band’s proposed casino site. She could “frustrate” those plans if she were to approve the Little River Band’s casino, Whitmer wrote.

“It is shameful that another tribe would seek to alienate our people from the lands of their ancestors,” Yob said. “I am hopeful that Governor Whitmer will preserve and protect the lands of the Grand River Bands for generations to come.”

In a terse letter sent Monday, May, 23, Whitmer pressured U.S. Interior Secretary Deb Haaland to decide on the tribe’s recognition before June 1 “so that I can take it into account” in determining the fate of the casino. Alternatively, she said her deadline should be extended.

“Shameful” is how the Grand River Bands of Ottawa Indians termed the Little River Band of Ottawa Indians’ plan to open a casino on property the Grand River Bands says is in its ancestral homeland.

Because it would be an off-reservation casino, it requires federal and state approval.

A decision on whether to federally recognize the Grand River Bands of Ottawa Indians is due by Oct. 12. If it does receive federal recognition, the tribe could open its own casino, according to Whitmer.

I just down downloaded the app again the other day since I see there have been some bug fixes. It seems to be working much better so I have upped my rating to three stars from one. I will play it for awhile and see if it remains stable and review again then. ----Old review from May 2016: This app seemed to work pretty well for awhile and now it doesn't work at all. I have occasionally spent $1.99 to purchase chips and after the last time, the app refuses to stay open. Since its been almost a month since the last update and there are many other reviews that indicate the same issues, I think it's time to delete the app and warn others against downloading it. As a developer myself, I hate to be critical of other developers but this is pretty disappointing. Oh well, it was fun while it lasted I guess.

“I am deeply concerned and disappointed that another tribe is attempting to pressure the governor to give away some of our homelands in order to build an off-reservation casino on the treaty lands of our tribe,” Grand River Bands of Ottawa Indians Chairman Ron Yob said in a prepared statement. “This is morally wrong and unjust, and we call on Governor Whitmer to reject this cynical effort.”

Yob praised Haaland for pushing the tribe’s petition for recognition “back on active consideration.” He also expressed “the greatest respect” for Whitmer.

Hi JetteMac, thanks for such an amazing review! We are glad you enjoy the app and we are reviewing your suggestions to add some changes that make our players more happy. The 100Club is actually one of the best ideas and we will work on it. Thanks!

The Grand River Bands of Ottawa Indians first sought federal recognition in 1994, and has been on the “active consideration list” since 2013, according to Yob. The recognition was needed to solidify its plans to open a casino near downtown Muskegon several miles west of the Fruitport Township site.

While broad local support buoyed the Little River Band’s planned casino for the past 12 years, it has received pushback from other Michigan casinos that oppose off-reservation gaming.

Whitmer clearly is unhappy with having to make a decision on the casino before the federal government decides if it will acknowledge the Grand River Bands of Ottawa Indians.

Romanelli said the issue of the Grand River Bands’ sovereignty and the Little River Band’s casino should not be tied together, and puts Whitmer “in a very awkward spot.”

Transformation of Muskegon Lake celebrated with the end of cleanup efforts

For decades, tribal leaders held out hope that a casino eventually would be developed on the “Harbor 31” site on Muskegon Lake. In 2014, city officials began to back off their endorsement of the plan, and ground recently was broken on a $110 million mixed-use development of the Harbor 31 property.

This is one of the best games, especially casino type game apps available. However, a fairly significant flaw is that once you meet the maximum level "100" you cannot earn extra "millionaire tokens" for leveling up. While I still get a daily token, I think very loyal players should get an additional token ever third or fourth sign in or some other reasonable number of sign ins to suggest we are being additionally rewarded for continuing to play. We should get a "Maximum Level Privilege Reward" like the "comps" the most loyal players get in an actual casino. C'mon developers --come up with something new and fun for the 100Club! □It's fairly obvious most players spend some actual cash on their favorite apps. ShowUsthePerks!!□□□□□□

The Department of Interior gave its approval of the casino in December 2020, just prior to former President Donald Trump leaving office. That gave Whitmer a year to make her decision, but she later was able to get federal approval for a six-month extension.
